

Attention High School Students and Recent Graduates:

Do you want to earn a scholarship by spending time outside this summer, harvesting kalo, eating 'ono local grinds, learning how to grow food, and visiting farms and other cool sites around the island? Then our two-week High School Sustainable Agriculture Program is for you!

June 19–30, 2017

8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The Kohala Center's Demonstration Farm in Honoka'a

Unable to attend the summer session?

Check out our Open Field Day on Friday, June 23!

Work in a lo'i and a Hawaiian fishpond, learn about raising animals, plant crops in all kinds of different settings, and go home with plants to grow in your garden (or start one)! Experience fun and exciting opportunities in local food production, and meet successful farmers and food producers who respectfully engage the 'āina in making a living while supporting their community.

Earn a scholarship of up to $250 for successfully completing the program and gain a rewarding experience that will look great on your resume.

Apply online at koha.la/highschoolag
